Change of Face For The Tamar

A change of face to the Rosevears Hotel has progressed to plan and should be completed by the end of November according to a spokesperson for owner /developer Allan Virieux. The estimated $6million development will transform the hotel into a prime tourist venue on the Tamar with planned accommodation for up to 50 people.

Stage 1 of the development , an extension glasshouse dining area and beer garden together with a corporate boardroom/entertainment space with a balcony and hidden temperature controlled cellar, was completed in 2015.

Stage 2 of the development is under construction at present. It comprises 26 eco-friendly accommodation units featuring views of the Tamar River at Windermere.

A planned 3rd stage of the development will be the future construction of a 40 berth marina for public/private use.

This facility will complement the plans for improvement to boat launching facilities on the East Tamar at Windermere.

It is potentially a positive improvement to facilities for recreational use of the river, and to visitors in the district generally. Development plans for the marina are being negotiated with the West Tamar Council and will be submitted to MAST in the near future. The development should provide much more reliable mooring and shelter from the frequent strong winds on the Tamar.

Daffodils: "The World's Most Popular & Powerful Flower" by Evelyn-Lilly Tuba

If you don't agree with this now, you will after reading Aug's Garden Club news and Helen O'Neill's magnificently illustrated book: 'Daffodil: Biography of a Flower' by Harper Collins Publishing (2016).

In Aug Garden Club was held at Green Acres, our property at Swan Bay. Being the last month of winter it often rains, so to be on the safe side, Jamie and I decided to set up for luncheon inside.. I decorated tables with freshly cut daffodils bringing the colour of the sun and fragrance of Spring into our home. As daffodils are central to our garden, we decided to dedicate the meeting to our property's late 1st owner Geoffrey Luck and his Daffodils.

Many locals will recall Geoff & Margaret Luck. They built our home as their dream home and one of the things that 1st attracted us, was a photo of the house looking resplendent complete with sways of golden daffodils in bloom. Daffodils were the Luck's signature flower and they planted 100s and 100s, if not 1000s of bulbs, which have since multiplied to 100s of 1000s in the gardens of homes they owned. As far as Green Acres is concerned, their love created a spectacular, annually, rejuvenating, living, legacy, enjoyed by us, our guests and all who pass Green Acres from May to September.

In fact, Geoff used to sell bulbs here, and evidence of this former commercial activity still exists in Jamie's now 'man cave', where there is a large cool room he used to chill/store bulbs. At the back of the property, behind the hedges, there was a row of hot houses, where Geoff also grew freesia flowers.

Over the past 6 years, Jamie and I have slowly learnt more about daffodils. Like many former mainlanders, we've embraced Tasmania's 4 season climate and the opportunity it affords to enjoy beautiful bulbs. We've both always liked daffodils; who doesn't admire their bright colours? It wasn't however until I recently read Helen O'Neill's latest book 'Daffodil' that my former daffodil admiration blossomed into a wild, passionate daffodil love affair.

Daffodil is a visual feast as well as literally being an Encyclopedia on Daffodils. It's well researched and beautifully illustrated. I highly recommend it not only to gardeners, but also to lovers of art, poetry and science, as O'Neill shows just how this remarkable flower has touched all of these areas. It's often said, 'you had to be there', but for those who were away in sun, hard at work, unwell or simply unable to join us for any other reason, I'll attempt to recreate some of the day's floral learning by outlining my Top 12 Daffodil facts as sourced from O'Neill's book:

Unfortunately we haven't room to print all of Evelyn's research on this page together with the wonderful photos they sent us. ...Ed

Garden Club acknowledgement...

On a slightly damp August day a small group had gathered at the home of Evelyn and Jamie for our garden club luncheon, as usual the food and conversations were freely flowing and of a great variety. Evelyn gave a very interesting talk on Daffodils, which was very apt as their gardens are a blaze of colour with them at this time of year. Evelyn had brought a book on Daffodils written by a lady who had over come cancer, it tells how and why the Cancer Council chose the daffodil as their emblem. It is also full of information on when and where they were first discovered and information on things they were and still are being used for, one lot of experiments that are still on going is for the treatment of dementia.

The book has a list of daffodil classification, .Thank you Evelyn for an extremely informative and interesting talk.

Thank you both for a lovely day.

District History ...More on the founders of our community..... Research by John Coulson

After he retired as pilot and harbour master George Coulson was granted a licence to retail wines and spirits at the Friends Arms, River Tamar. This two story building still stands on Dilston Road.

In 1837 George advertised his wharf as available for shipping stock and offered adjustment on his land as a more effective alternative to driving them overland to George Town. In 1838 The Coulsons were visited by Lady Franklin. This is an extract from private correspondence of the Franklins Mrs Coulson thanking us for the honour done her, and begging Sir John's aid in the building of a new house which they contemplated living in after letting the Inn to a tenant.

It seems the plea was successful and it is likely the first house was built at Thorpe as a result. In 1839 George Coulson advertised the Friends Arms as available to let. It appears that offer was taken up by a Charles Coward and George Coulson moved to Thorpe and Dilston Lodge was advertised to be to let or purchase. However George was not particularly interested in farming so he leased the property to his son, William Pattern Coulson who took a keen interest in agriculture. One problem faced at Thorpe was the constant flooding of the property from Nelson Creek which flowed through it. It is not reported in any newspaper but it is understood that convicts were employed to divert Nelson Creek out to the Tamar just beside Dilston Lodge.

Steamship Travel on the Tamar River

Fares

To Coulson's	Cabin.	Forward.
Brown's	4shillings	2sh 6d
Reid's	5	2sh 6d
George Town and Kelso	6	4sh
	6sh 6d	4sh

Ironically the flooding continued because lack of water flow through the area caused the outlet, now known as Coulson's Creek, to silt up.

By 1846, river travel was the most popular with Coulson's Wharf at Dilston a designated stop as this ad testifies:.

TAMAR STEAM NAVIGATION COMPANY: The steam boat

"Gypsy" will leave the Wharf for George Town. on Saturday next, the 31st instant, at eight o'clock, AM, returning the following Monday at two o'clock PM., a.m. During the month of October, the 'GIPSY' will proceed to George Town every Saturday, and return with rates as shown above.

Those prices might appear cheap but, put in the context of wages at the time, river travel on the Tamar was not a proposition for anyone. That 4s fare would be all a painter would earn for a full day's work.

A VERY SPECIAL SERVICE

ALL SOULS DAY—SUNDAY 6th NOVEMBER

All Hallows, All Saints or All Souls is an annual Christian celebration — a time in the liturgical year dedicated to remembering and thanking God for the lives of our loved ones who have passed on. It is especially important as a time for us to remember those whose lives have touched our own in faith and love.

In our Church at Windermere we mark this time with a Special Evening Service and BBQ, where those who wish may light a memorial candle from the Easter candle in the church and proceed with the light to the graveyard or memorial wall. Lighted candles are placed either on graves or on the wall above the ashes of loved ones as a sign of remembrance and thanksgiving for their lives.

The Choir from Holy Trinity will also be in attendance and the Men's Society will cook the BBQ

All are invited to join us on Sunday the 6th November for this celebration

Choral Evensong Service Commences at 6:00 pm and BBQ at 7:00 pm (Please Bring Chairs)

THE GAMAN FAMILY BAPTISM

SUNDAY 25 SEPTEMBER 2016

St Matthias' Church was full for this family gathering of the Gaman Family

AND WHAT A CELEBRATION IT WAS

Charlotte Gaman was baptised in early 2015 but this time it was Darcy William Gaman's turn. The very proud parents were Carolyn and Andrew Gaman, with Ann and Andrew Gaman (paternal grandparents from Western Australia) and Helen and Peter Strong (maternal grandparents who now reside in Windermere) in attendance. And we can't forget Fleur Strong, a very proud Auntie who is the chef at the local Windermere Cafe. I also have to say that it was the first baptismal service for Rev Doc JF who was also very excited.

Tasmania Fire Service

Dilston Fire Brigade

New Members Needed!

As noted last issue of Smoke Signals, the movement of a number of our members has resulted in there being a need to bolster our numbers.

We are conscious of the fact that we all lead busy lives, and it can be hard to give up that extra time away from family to fill a volunteering role in the community.

However, within this state and indeed throughout Australia, essential emergency service roles are filled by volunteers from all walks of life, and here in Dilston it is no different.

Constance's well written article in the last edition of Smoke Signals lays testament to the family nature of our brigade, and we would love to hear from you if you feel you are able to give up some of your valuable time so that "many hands make light work"!

You'll learn great life skills and be part of an essential Tasmanian Service that is 95% volunteer.

Retirement...

As mentioned last issue, Rob 'Monty' Montague has recently retired from operational duties, and in recognition of over four decade of service to the community, we held a small gathering at the station to commemorate his and his wife Rosalie's time in the brigade. We are proud to announce that in addition to the awards of recognition that they received, we also inducted them both along with past members Mike and Pat Adams, as inaugural life members of the brigade. A hearty congratulations to them all, and big thank you for all the many years of service collectively given!

We need to also give a big thanks to Kerri and her team at the Windermere Café, and also to Jazy Brown for their combined supreme efforts in providing the catering for the event. Thankyou to you all.

As this is the last edition of smoke signals before he leaves, we want to recognise the commitment to the brigade by our immediate past Brigade Chief Paul Blakie, as he and his partner Ebonee prepare for their new adventure overseas. From his early days as a junior fire fighter, through to his tenure as Brigade Chief, Paul has been a leader and a part of significant change and progression in Dilston Fire Brigade. A new station and two new appliances in his four years as BC is a huge achievement, and testament to the confidence in the brigade as shown by the Tasmania Fire Service. All the best Paul and Ebonee, we know you will both reach new heights in your travels.

Are YOU bushfire ready? PREPARE • ACT • SURVIVE

This Tasmania Fire Service (TFS) DVD provides information to guide you through the steps you should take to prepare your home, yourself and your family against bushfires.

It answers important questions about what it's like in a bushfire, why houses burn down and why people die. It also provides information and advice about whether to leave early, well before a bushfire arrives, or to stay and defend your well prepared property.

The TFS message is a simple one – fewer lives and homes would be lost if property owners planned and prepared for bushfires.

Please take the time to watch segments of this DVD listed below – the information may not only save your property, it could also save your life and the lives of your family.

To order your free copy of the DVD, visit the TFS website, or contact one of the Brigade Members.

Community Centre News

ETMS members have been active on Saturday mornings over the Winter period in the construction of a welded planning table frame and 18 computer monitor desks for Artas, a Launceston architectural firm. Several other projects have also been undertaken including repair of furniture. Our Early Learning Block Set construction has been going strongly and current orders will take us to the end of October to complete.

We have been approached by several local organisations needing assistance with wood construction projects which we have the equipment and the skills to undertake.

Whilst ETMS is a not for profit organisation, we do charge fees for the projects we undertake to cover our running costs. We have recently recruited 2 new members and remain hopeful that others in the community will show an interest in becoming involved.

SHED hours during the Spring and Summer months will be Wednesdays and Saturdays 10:00am – 2:00pm.

If you have a project you think we may be interested in helping you with, please come up to the SHED and talk with us.

Potential new members can contact Jeff Wynne 0417843943 or Jon Hosford 0419317808 or write to us :

The Annual General Meeting will be held at the SHED on Saturday October 8th at 11:00am.

Farewell:

Long-term residents Merryn and Neil McLelland, are returning to live in NSW to be closer to family after 23 years of happy retirement in Windermere Rd.

Almost immediately on arrival in 1993, Merryn started delivering Smoke Signals, which was then a smaller, monthly edition, and through walking with their dog they quickly met so many locals. They have loved the supportive friendly community, the beautiful river views, Garden Club lunches and earlier days with the Amblers Walking group. Merryn has been very involved in St Matthias Church, and was secretary of the Book Club for 10 years, while Neil also enjoyed boating on the river and was the inaugural Treasurer of the Men's Shed.

A farewell lunch for their many friends and neighbours will be held on Sat Oct 29th 12-2:30 at 454 Windermere Rd. BYO drinks and a plate of finger food to share. RSVP Merryn 0407879462 or Marg 63281163 by Oct 26.

Thank you Merryn & Neil for 23 years of support to Smokesignals.

IT'S A FACT: BOOK LOVERS LIVE LONGER. IT'S LIKE GYM WORKOUT FOR THE MIND.

A new study has revealed that those who read for at least 30 minutes every day are more likely to enjoy a longer life.

Based on a U.S. study of 3,635 people aged 50 or older, those who spent time buried in a book survived almost two years longer on average than those who didn't.

The findings, reported by a team from Yale University's School of Public Health, showed that the more people read, the more likely they were to live longer, and just 3.5 hours a week was enough to make a difference. This new study ties into existing research that supports the idea that reading really can help keep the mind active and healthy.

The Harvard researchers suggest that the slow, immersive process of digging deep into a book creates a "cognitive engagement" effect – stimulating and strengthening the language-processing regions in the brain.

The researchers also suggest that reading fiction could increase feelings of empathy strengthening our connections with the people and the world around us, and contributing to a more engaged, happier, and therefore longer life.

Interestingly, the study found that because book reading is more engaging it was much more likely to increase a person's lifespan than reading newspapers or magazines.

Next step for the researchers will be to look at whether there are any noticeable differences between reading fiction and non-fiction, and whether using e-books and audiobooks is as beneficial as reading traditional paper novels.

The findings add to existing evidence that suggests how good reading can be for you. A study conducted in 2003 found that regular reading keeps the brain active and could help keep dementia at bay, while another study in 2009 showed that reading also reduces stress levels.

While more research will be needed before we can conclude that it's our love of books that actually promotes longer life, there's definitely no harm in starting that novel you've been meaning to get around to. So pick up a book today.

We're talking, of course, about the long-term benefits of being a member of our local book group. Windermere, Dilston and Swan Bay booklovers having been enjoying one another's stimulating company once a month for the last thirty years, while keeping their minds active. Currently meetings are held on the second Wednesday of every month at members' homes, commencing at 7.30pm.

To celebrate our 30th anniversary in October we are inviting booklovers who are interested in joining our Book Club to join us for a special get-together on Wednesday October 12 at 7.30 pm. Couples are welcome. Indeed, in the early years of our book group quite a number of men were frequent attendees.

While fiction is often a regular choice, the book we will be discussing at this October meeting will be The Water Dreamers by historian and popular broadcaster, Michael Cathcart, in which he explores the ways in which Australian life has been fundamentally shaped by water -- or rather by the lack of it.

In the 19th century, European Australians came to equate our continent's dry interior with 'emptiness' and 'silence', and also with the notion of aridity in both a material and metaphorical sense.

The Water Dreamers is a haunting and thought provoking history of a dry land that refuses to yield to the fevered imagination of its colonizers.

Cathcart suggests that from Federation onwards, spirited nationalists such as Alfred Deakin sought to change this earlier ambivalent relationship to the land by overcoming it -- and that they attempted to do this through water. Irrigation became a symbol of this new belief.

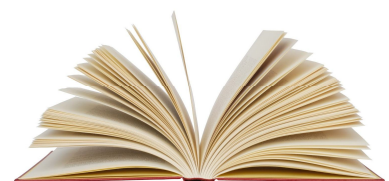

Michael Cathcart argues that today Australia is witnessing the emergence of a new nationalism shaped by environmental consciousness and global responsibility.

Towns Shearing Real Estate

For those of us who are living on the land, we are all extremely grateful that winter has now passed and we are starting to see the paddocks drying out and some warmer days ahead to help with getting our gardens back into a decent state of presentation. The surplus rain has been wonderful to help fill the dams, but I think we have now had enough. Its time to start thinking of getting your home on the market if you have been considering this. It is also exciting see the bank interest rates staying at an all time low and this obviously helps us with repayments on our home loans, as well as an enticement into investing into the housing market.

So if you would like an obligation free market appraisal on your property, please do not hesitate to call me.

Window casualty

A victim of the mating season and human habitation.

A Shining Bronze-Cuckoo flew into our bedroom window today and unfortunately did not survive the impact. It was a male bird 16cm long with beautiful bronze/green colouring on the back with a fully bronze-barred breast. The tail was barred in the middle with green edges. I had heard staccato calls in the garden yesterday and knew they were around.

Blue wrens can survive predation by this bird. Read more about this next edition.
