COMMUNITY ARTS AT WINDERMERE

The Ratchet River Band Ukulele section with Elizabeth File and the original 'ratchet tea chest bass' and Francesca, the saxophone player.

For the past several years, members of the Windermere, Dilston, Swan Bay and Hillwood communities have been joining Dr Di Nailon OAM to explore a range of visual and performing arts.

Di is an arts and education researcher at UTAS with dedicated art studios for group gatherings in Windermere. Community members who meet at ArtsPlay @ Windermere on Mondays have over time developed their skills and ambitions and are now entering local arts competitions.

In 2024, Lynne Lange (pictured here at work in the ArtsPlay Studio) was chosen to exhibit in the local dAda mUse gallery's Surrealist Competition. Lynne says "the supportive nature of our art group is such that we all feel more confident to experiment and develop in our artistic endeavours".

Art exhibitions where group members can show their completed work are held throughout the year. Works exhibited are the result of weekend retreat sessions with visiting artists.

ArtsPlay members interested in making music have created the Ratchet River Band (as seen performing at the Harvest Festival at St Matthias Church).

The band first began in Di's 'maker's shed' when Elizabeth File excitedly introduced a new 'instrument' to the fledgling group - an actual ratchet! The name Ratchet River Band was then a no brainer!

The group's musicianship ranges from interested beginners to accomplished performers. It is a self-supported group that aims to explore and produce both improvised music and sing-alongs.

Di can be contacted on 0400 389 107 for further information.

Valé Ian Farquhar

Our community has lost a faithful steward of our environment in the recent death of Ian Ronald Farquhar on April 20th 2025, aged 85. Ian came to Swan Bay in 2006 after a life of agricultural leadership in the Winnaleah district. Ian's kindness to all he met, his humility and compassion will be remembered by all who knew him. He was guided by a deep faith in God and Jesus Christ as his personal saviour. Ian's contribution to this community was often expressed in his concern for, research towards, and action in the environment. In his earlier life, Ian was a pioneer in the essential oils industry and a leader in Tasmanian agriopolitics. Ian gained a Nuffield scholarship in 1972 and with his wife Dianne they spent many years supporting the education of newcomers into the field of agriculture.

Ian's frequent contributions through the Smoke Signals publication were well researched and showed a genuine active concern for the health of the environment. These included a diversity of environmental concerns; from the weathering of gravestones through changes in the atmospheric composition (Edition 159, p4), to the demise of white gums (Eucalyptus viminalis) in the district through ginger virus (Edition 196, p3; Edition 197, p2). His education on native plants within the district inspired many to plant appropriate species in their gardens (Edition 203, p9; Edition 207, p2).

Ian pioneered the use of bat hollows in the district, when the existence of bats was known to few. After an article I wrote (Edition 228, p7) he constructed the hollows by gathering suitable hollow logs and crafting them to suit the sheltering needs of these important links in the chain of life. The Men's Shed became Ian's regular place to go on a Wednesday and a Saturday, where he became known for his woodcraft in the construction of many pieces of furniture and the repair of local artifacts. Woodworking was a retirement love of Ian's and true to commitment he did a course in furniture design at UTAS in early retirement and is responsible for the creative seats on the Three Capes Track. Our love and condolences to Ian's wife Dianne, his children Andrew Duncan and Kirsty, along with Ian's large extended family. He will be truly missed and remembered in this community for his caring contribution.

The story of the attached photograph of a Church, started with a phone call from a lady following a visit to Windermere Church with her husband in late January. The call was taken by June Burnet. The lady called to say she wanted to show someone a photo she thought could be 100 years old.

After introductions, she told June how she had searched through hundreds of church images online, before she found that it was at Windermere.

The photograph of the church, named 'Full Moon' was taken by HJ King a prominent Launceston Photographer at that time. It was found within a wall while renovating a room in their house at Beauty Point (recently purchased, sight unseen from Queensland and had only moved in three weeks beforehand). It was also behind another old Black and White photo of a little girl by the name of 'Loretta', coincidentally also the same name of the lady that found it. On the back of the Photograph, was hand written 'London 1939' and HJ King, Launceston, Tas, plus a label stating 'THIS PICTURE WAS SHOWN IN THE SOUTHERN TASMANIAN PHOTOGRAPHIC SOCIETY'S ANNUAL EXHIBITION OF PHOTOGRAPHY 1941'

During the next few weeks Loretta did extensive research to try and locate the little girl Loretta and any owner of the photographs, she found out HJ King did not live at the house, but the little girl may have. Her search continues.

June dated the photograph from the Church's 175th History book, as the photograph showed an iron roof. The shingle roof was replaced with iron in October 1939, the same year of the London exhibition.

In due course, Loretta intends that the original photographs will be donated to the Launceston Museum.

Copyright was looked into by Loretta, 'copyright of any photo taken before 1 January 1955 has expired, therefore the photo can be reproduced without permission'.

Loretta now being the owner, has given permission to Windermere Church Forever Inc. to sell copies for fundraising purposes.

'FULL MOON' prints will be displayed and available, ranging in sizes from postcard to A4 (A3 upon request) at the upcoming WCF Market at Dilston Hall on Saturday 21st June, so save the date.

GARDEN CLUB NEWS

APRIL – “HOLMEFIELD”, WESTBURY

Garden Club had previously visited “Holmefield” in October 2022 – 2-1/2 years ago. The 3.4-acre block was originally the garden of the house next door, until it was sub-divided. Peter, who does all the work himself, has planted many box hedges and created some beautiful stonework. The garden in 2022, was looking at its best in spring – green and lush. At that time, he informed us that he had plans to build a new home for himself on the property and was hoping to begin in the next couple of years.

Fast forward to 2025, and in contrast to the greenness in October 2022, the very dry summer has reduced the dam’s water level significantly. Peter’s plan to have it deepened will help to ensure less evaporation in the future.

Clipped green hedges in rows and in various shapes around the garden, provide relief from the dry-affected, not-so-green lawns. Hedges encircle and highlight specimen trees. Peter has been fertilising with sheep manure and spreading sheep wool for mulch.

Other features in the garden are delightful huts which are open at the front. From the inside these huts provide a resting place to enjoy the picturesque vistas of the gardens and beyond. The pleached hornbeam hedge just inside the entrance to the garden is to be underplanted with roses in the near future – replacing the lavenders which have not fared well.

An espaliered maple and a thriving gold dust bush (aucuba japonica) are some other interesting features of this extensive garden. Some wonderful stonework has been used to create steps and pavers - to preserve and showcase pieces of broken china, and to enclose the underneath section of the new house. A large and comprehensive vegetable garden is effectively netted to keep out the wildlife. A generously sized aviary houses a collection of canaries providing continuous background “music”. We were invited into Peter’s future new home – started in March 2024 and a work still in progress. It is built in the Georgian style using aged bricks, as well as salvaged architraves, doors and flooring. It is destined to become fully off the grid.

MAY – TASMANIAN ARBORETUM, EUGANEENA

A small but enthusiastic group of members made their way to the Tasmanian Arboretum in May.. Garden Club has visited the Arboretum three years in a row (twice in May and once in April), enjoying the beauty of the autumn colours. Late autumn (May) certainly appears to be the best time to view the magnificent deciduous show!

Packed picnic lunches were enjoyed at a vantage point on the ridge, from where a wonderful vista across the Arboretum could be appreciated.....and down on Founders lake, as if on cue, the platypuses made their welcomed appearance. They have, fortuitously for us, made an appearance on every visit!

The Arboretum always provides a magical day - culminating in the enjoyment of home-made ice creams from the local kiosk. This outing is an exceptional experience, particularly bearing in mind that most of the upkeep for the Arboretum is performed by volunteers.

If you would like to visit the Arboretum, it is only just over an hour’s drive away. Just check the website for opening hours, etc.

Dilston Windermere and Swan Bay Garden Club’s next gatherings will be held June – an afternoon tea in a Windermere Fantasy Garden, and in July, our traditional Midwinter Celebration Lunch. New members are very welcome. If you would like to join Garden Club, please contact me (phone number below) or send an email to:

CHURCH NEWS St Matthias' Anglican Church

The long-awaited Columbarium Wall extensions are now complete. 14 niches have been sold in the last 2 months, so obviously it is considered to be a very special resting place. Costs are on par with Lilydale and well below those of Carr Villa in town. Niches can be reserved by any folk, local or otherwise, and irrespective of connection with the church itself. Enquiries can be made through the Holy Trinity Parish office: brittany@htl.org.au

Easter Sunday Sunrise 38 people braved the cool but fine weather on Easter Sunday at 6:30am to worship and take communion together beside the river, while the sun rose behind the clouds on this most special of Christian days. What a wonderful way to celebrate the resurrection of our Lord! Hot chocolate, Hot Cross Buns and Easter Eggs were all well-received afterwards in the warmth of the church. We all celebrate Christ's birth at Christmas, but it is only through his death and resurrection that we can be assured of the hope of forgiveness and eternal life.

Thanks to the local contributors who have supported the Parish Board of Mission stalls. After our Harvest Festival, our keen and capable gardeners continued to donate their excess produce for the benefit of others, with so many quinces, apples, pears etc provided from Windermere residents to the parish street stalls. The yearly total raised was $ 6648, supporting outreach mission projects both within Australia and internationally. Windermere's support is greatly appreciated, and will hopefully expand even further next year.

Early August. Watch out for the daffodils which bloom annually at this time.

In 2018 we finally raised the money to pay our commitment to the Sexual Redress scheme, and so saved our church from sale. The steady increase in our congregation since then reaffirms our belief in the future of our church as a viable worship centre. Aug 11th 2025 will mark 180 years since the first wedding at StM, between Sarah Plummer and William Rosevear. Though no large-scale celebration is planned, you might pass on an invitation to any family or friends who were married at StM in the past, to visit on that day. They may like to join us on Sunday Aug 10th, to give thanks for God in their lives, and re-live memories over a cuppa afterwards.

In past years we have organised a special appeal collecting good used winter clothing, non-perishable food and toiletries for those doing it tough in our community. As we no longer have the shop as a drop-off point for collection, we encourage you to take your goods and donations direct to those charities in our community: Anglicare, St Vinnie's, City Mission, Salvation Army etc, or leave them for Anglicare at Holy Trinity church in town (George St) The wider Christian church has always supported the needy, and continues to do so: the hands and feet of Christ in our world.

We look forward to the arrival of newly-appointed Assistant Priest Rev Mark Barry and wife Lucy, joining our parish from Longford as from May 28th.

St Matthias' Anglican Church Windermere. Meets 9:30am, 2nd and 4th Sundays each month. Rector Rev Lee Shirvill. Parish Office Ph. 63314460. Facebook. stmatthiaswindermere

John Moody

John Moody was an enthusiastic contributor to the Shed over many years, and a long-time management committee member until his death. A very talented man whose knowledge and skills extended across the areas of woodwork, metal work, welding, design, computers and electronics. As well as working on the original electrical wiring of the Shed, his knowledge of the Shed's machines and ability to fix problems kept us functioning many times.

As the leader and main contributor to the Low Head Community Garden project, he has left a lasting legacy for all to see. A good natured and patient teacher, always eager to lend a hand.

The Low Head Community Garden

Ian Farquhar

We also lost Ian Farquhar, another stalwart of the Shed. His love of fine timber and his ability to craft it into a large variety of items, including beautiful pieces of furniture, or small wooden boxes or quirky coat stands was evidence of his skill and creativity.

His enthusiasm and commitment to the Shed was demonstrated by his production of multiple items for the annual market every year, as well as serving as a committee member for many years. He was a great teacher, quiet and humble, always ready to help others with the finer points of completing a project

Both men will be greatly missed.

Some of Ian's Work

ETMS is assisted by equipment grants from the Tasmanian Government.

On a lighter note, preparations are underway for our role in the the market on the 21st June. We will be having the usual sausage sizzle, wooden items for sale and a general stall with useful items for the home and workshop. A particular attraction this year will be an ability to get up close and personal with Some special birds and have your photo taken.

OUR HISTORY

BRICK MAKING IN DILSTON

Tony Walker

Convict brick makers used local clay for the bricks to build Rostella.

With the quantity of clay under Dilston and its easy access to the Tamar for transportation, it's no surprise that there were early attempts at brick making here.

The first bricks were made by two convict brickmakers assigned to William Neilly for the construction of Rostella in 1834.

In 1877 George Whelan had bought the Friend's Arms and in 1880 sank a shaft looking for coal deposits. He found a seam of coal at a depth of 35 feet but had to go through 27 feet of clay before reaching it.

Whelan sent a sample of the clay to the McHugh brothers who operated a pottery at Sandhill. They pronounced it of excellent quality.

In November 1882, the East Tamar Brick Making Association issued its prospectus, estimating a prospective profit of £60 per week on brick making and "In addition to this estimate, pipes, tiles, and a variety of articles too numerous to enumerate, might be turned out, and materially swell the profit, as the clays are of all descriptions, and in inexhaustible quantity."

In 1883 the company was advertising for brick moulders and the following year a river cruise party reported inspecting the "brick-making establishment".

In 1885, Campbell's Pottery bought the business and were advertising: "TO BUILDERS AND OTHERS Requiring bricks down the river, or on the East or West Coast; may be had in any quantity at boats' side. EAST TAMAR BRICK WORKS."

In his "Lost Mines of the Tamar", Nigel Birch relates the rather tragic story of the failure of the brick works. It appeared that a letter addressed to "Manager, Brick and Tile Manufactory, George Town Road, Dilston", had somehow gone through Frankford, Tunnack, Sheffield, Bracknell, Hobart and Launceston, bearing no less than 13 postal stamps and taking 105 days to be delivered! The letter contained an order from the Bangor Slate Quarry association for 100,000 bricks to build 50 cottages for the slate workers on their way from Cornwall, with a further order of 100,000 to follow. This may well have set up the brickworks for a prosperous future.

There was a brief revival of brick making when Henry Law took over the defunct brickworks in 1890 and within a year the first load of bricks exported from Tasmania left the Dilston jetty on The Beagle. Law's spectacular bankruptcy the following year (bringing down the Bank of Van Diemen's Land with him), put an end to the story and the brick works, bricks and equipment were auctioned off in 1893.

Both Brigades report that pleasingly we have seen a number of new member join our ranks, and their training has is well underway! It provides great opportunities for new and updated principles of firefighting to be brought into the brigades, with members who may have been around for some time, also benefitting from the new members and their training.

Above all else however, it is great to see the welcoming nature of both brigades to new people, as we truly do see it as our second family!

Fire Season draws to a close

With the shift in temperatures, the formal fire season is bid farewell. Appreciation to members of both brigades who gave up many hours traveling around the state, to assist in fires well outside our areas!

Wood Heaters...

With the colder months approaching chimney fires are situations that our local brigades deal with.

Following some questions after our mention of flu and chimney fires last edition, we thought we would add in more information.

There are typically a number of incidents in the Tasmanian community each year as a result of the cooler temperatures.

The fires that occur are usually due to the buildup of flammable materials such as creosote. Creosote is a tar-like substance that can accumulate on the walls of chimneys and flues when wood or other organic materials are burned. When the buildup becomes thick enough, it can ignite and cause a chimney fire.

Preventing chimney fires involves regular maintenance, including annual chimney inspections and cleanings to remove any creosote buildup. Using seasoned wood and ensuring proper airflow in the chimney can also help reduce the risk of chimney fires.

Another fire risk in the colder months is drying clothes to near to a heater. To manage this risk.

Maintain a safe distance between the heater and any clothing or flammable material.

The Tasmania Fire Service recommends a minimum 2 meter gap, and definitely avoid placing clothes directly on or in front of the heater.

Use dedicated drying racks and clotheslines away from heaters is a safe way to dry clothes safely inside.

As always, if you would like some advice on these or other fire safety tips, don't forget to reach out to us!

A garden for all seasons
My garden fills my heart full of joy
autumn leaves colour and fall that I so enjoy.
Winter may be dull and dismal
but the skeleton of leafless trees look so blissful.

Spring has awakened my garden.
I cannot wait to explore the emerging flowers full of colour, insects and birds that start to flutter.

Summer is harsh and can be dry as the grass takes on a brown tinge.
Plants begin to show me that they need a drink
so I oblige with a bit of binge.
